

DEAD 'JERSEY DEVIL' FOUND IN WOODS

Body of Strange Animal Explains
Puzzling Hoofprints Left in the Snow

SENT TO THE STATE MUSEUM

The Spinal Column Extends Six
Inches Behind Junction with Hind
Legs, Somewhat After the Manner of the Tail of a Kangaroo.

Burlington, N. J.—If anybody ever doubted that a "Jersey devil" left its strange and puzzling hoofprints in the snow of this and adjoining States last winter, proof was produced here that the scare was never due to highballs. There is on exhibit in this city the carcass of the queerest animal ever seen about here, a beast not on the schedule of any natural history ever read by any one of this section.

The animal's body, still in good condition, as though it had been dead only a short while, was found by Morris Cabinsky of this city, and Charles Malbury of Kinkora, in the woods near Kinkora, and was brought to this city, where hundreds have seen and marvelled. Photographs have been made of the beast and Prof. Henry Morse, curator of the State Museum, will be asked to give the animal a name and place it where it belongs—if he is able to do so.

The boys thought at first they had come upon the carcass of a big wildcat, but it looked so queer to them that they decided to carry it into town.

The body of the animal is about twenty inches long and thin. The spinal column extends six inches behind the junction with the hind legs like the tail of a kangaroo, but this again is tipped with nine inches of tail like a squirrel's, but of reddish brown fur. The strangest feature of all and that which would seem to convict it of last winter's famous hoofprints, is found in the fore legs and feet. The legs are fifteen inches long, consisting of four joints and socketed to these are the feet, which take the form of a broad, flat bone with a distinct heel. The foot bones are two and a half inches long and over an inch broad in a solid piece.

If the animal traveled by leaps bending the two fore feet down together he would land after each long spring with the feet forming the puzzling effect of the hoofprints in the snow last winter. The rear feet would explain the finding of "cat" prints near the hoof marks. What looks like the framework of a pair of short wings rises from the animal's back, just above its short hind legs.

The big mouth is set with sharp teeth three quarters of an inch long, while the head is adorned with long, lance-like ears and whiskers four inches long.

A SOUTH SEA MASSACRE.

Natives Attack and Burn Trading Vessel.

Victoria, B. C.—Further details of the massacres in New Britain received by the steamer Marama are to the effect that Captain Lindsay, of the ketch Rabaul, and ten of his crew were murdered and burned. The trading vessel was looted and also burned.

Captain Lindsay, owner and master of the Rabaul, was off the east coast of New Britain, about two hundred miles from Herbertshone, recruiting laborers. About sundown, when he anchored his ship for the night, a swarm of native canoes came off, and the blacks asked that he come ashore, as plenty of men were ready to sign as laborers. Captain Lindsay went on land and was escorted to a big native house, where about a hundred blacks were gathered.

As he stepped in he was struck down from behind with a spear, and the blacks sprang upon him with knives. He fell bleeding from scores of wounds and was hacked to death. The body was then dragged out to the beach and burned. The flotilla of canoes then went off to the Rabaul and blacks swarmed aboard. One after another the ten men of the crew were slaughtered. Then, while they lay, some dead, some mortally wounded, on the deck, a raid was made on the stores and kerosene poured over the deck and in the holds, making the ship a funeral pyre for the murdered men. Ship and victims were completely destroyed.

Pig Grows a Pound a Day.

Kennebec, Me.—Frank Combs, of West Franklin, has the prize expansion pig. The animal came to Mr. Combs as a suckling at the age of thirty days and weighing twenty-six pounds. In two weeks it weighed forty-one pounds, a gain of a pound a day. At the prevailing price of pork it has been figured out that this robust porker will be worth more than half a hundred dollars when he is a year old if his ability to assimilate hog fodder does not deteriorate in the mean time.

So Much Easier.

A tourist while traveling in the north of Scotland, far away from anywhere, exclaimed to one of the natives, "Why, what do you do when any of you are ill? You can never get a doctor."

"Nae, sir," replied Sandy. "We've jist to dee a natural death."—London Opinion.

STEERS SHIP BY SIXTH SENSE

Norwegian, Blindfolded, Puzzles Scientists in the Harbor at Copenhagen.

Copenhagen, Denmark.—Emil Knudsen, a Norwegian who says he possesses a sixth sense, blindfolded and under the watch of a dozen scientists steered a steamer like a skilled pilot through the intricate lanes of Copenhagen Harbor. Not once did the vessel deviate from a true course in the channels, and in addition Knudsen swung the steamer clear of other craft.

Knudsen is 36 years old. He came here a month ago from Christians, and at once became an object of interest to scientists. He was put through many experiments by Professor Friedenreich, one of the leading nerve specialists in Europe, and as a result the professor suggested the trip in the harbor. Knudsen said he could guide himself anywhere without using his eyes, and a steamer was chartered to put him to a supreme test. Knudsen had no knowledge of the harbor. He requested that a person knowing the channels should hold two finger tips against the sides of his head. Professor Friedenreich consented to this, and himself pressed two finger tips against Knudsen's temples.

The man handled the wheel without a sign of nervousness or uncertainty. It was impossible for him to see, yet he took more than a dozen sharp corners and followed a zigzag course throughout. All the scientists who witnessed the demonstration said that Knudsen possesses a mysterious power that actually may be a sixth sense.

PARIS SHOW BESIDE NEW YORK.

Washington, D. C.—Charles E. Magoon, former Provisional Governor of Cuba, who is home from Europe, found Paris distressingly tame.

"The night life of Paris is that of a remote village compared with the night life of New York," said he. "By midnight the Place de L'Opera and Rue de la Paix are completely deserted and as quiet as a graveyard. Why, the doors of my hotel were closed at 12 o'clock. If you look for the Broadway night to be eclipsed in Paris you are doomed to great disappointment."

Mr. Magoon came away convinced that the French, even in Paris, are much more given to the simple life than is generally supposed.

BOY ATE FROM DOG'S PAN.

Couple in Jail, Accused of Maltreating Lad.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y.—Mr. and Mrs. James Kelley, of Pine Plains, sixteen miles from this city, were put in the county jail, charged with having abused Charles Williams, seven years old, who had been "farmed out" to them by the Hope Farm, of Verbank, Dutchess County. Young Williams was taken to Vassar Hospital, greatly emaciated and suffering from beatings and starvation.

Justice Rockefeller, of Pine Plains, filed affidavits of Pine Plains residents which state that medical aid was refused the boy and that he was terribly beaten.

"I have seen little Charles Williams eat out of the dog pan which sits outside the kitchen door," said George Shears in his affidavit, "and I heard Kelley say he wished the boy would die, so he could get the insurance on his life."

The Rev. Thomas Hazzard told how the boy's body was covered with scars and marks, and when found by him the lad could hardly talk.

HOW HE WON HER.

Want "Ad" Completes Romance in Advertising Department.

St. Louis.—There's romance in advertising. Leo H. Meyer and Miss Neoma H. Hardaway found it beyond the counters of the business department of the Westliche Post. Meyer, thirty-five years of age, has been with the Westliche Post fourteen years. When Miss Hardaway, a handsome blonde, entered his department a year ago, Meyer listened to the lure of Cupid. He inserted a matrimonial want "ad" in his employer's paper. Miss Hardaway, on a vacation visit to her sister, Mrs. J. Orville Rice, in Jerseyville, Ill., read it and, not knowing the identity of the advertiser, answered it. A telephone message says the marriage ceremony was performed at the Rice home in Jerseyville by the Rev. W. W. Hicks.

TOO POOR TO BE A SENATOR.

Flint of California Says He'll Quit and Try to Provide for Family.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Senator Flint announced unofficially that when his present term expires on March 4, 1911, he will not be a candidate for reelection. Flint has been travelling with President Taft and made the statement in discussing the political outlook.

"If I were a rich man," said Senator Flint, "I would like nothing better than to remain in the Senate all my life. But I feel that I owe it to my family to get out of politics and get a competency while I am able."

CENSOR OF DRESS FOR SHOPGIRLS

Puffs and Rats Barred With Gum and Peekaboos For New York Saleswomen

JEWELS ARE ALSO FORBIDDEN

Colors and Tight Fitting Dresses Must not Be Worn in Big Stores—They Must Dress "Neatly" on Average of $8 a week.

What a Salesgirl in a New York Store Must and Must not Do.

She MUST Not

- Chew gum or powder her nose, Rouge her cheeks,
- Wear "rats" or "puffs,"
- Wear bright colors or jewelry,
- Wear thin waists that show her lingerie,
- Wear tight fitting dresses that show her figure.

She MUST

- Be neat,
- Dress well,
- Wear clean linen,
- Wear either black or white,
- Arrange her hair prettily.

The average salary of a New York saleswoman is $8 a week.

New York, N. Y.—The above facts were learned by a little tour of investigation prompted by the announcement that one of Chicago's largest department stores has adopted a system of censorship over its saleswomen. She is an official woman censor, whose duty is to pass among the women employees in the emporium, suggest modifications, and when necessary to enforce them.

Beneath the more maternally tactful cognomen of "matron," in the New York department stores all the functions of the Chicago "censor" are fulfilled. In practically every department store in New York there is somewhere a kindly faced woman whose duty it is to curb sartorial high spirits and antics.

In one of the city's largest stores the dress of 250 girls, ranging in age from fifteen years indefinitely upward, is supervised by a woman of discrimination, who is a trained nurse and student of social problems. In a white pique uniform and with a general air of "mothering," it was plain that fact of this particular "Matron-Censor" invariably carried her securely across the thin ice of pride which often surrounds a girlish heart.

With a little gesture of despair the uniformed matron proclaimed her chief difficulty in regulating the dress of the girls in her charge.

"It is their hair!" she sighed. "It is so hard to get a woman to change the manner of dressing her hair, and it is so hard to make these girls understand that the hair of a business woman should be neatly and plainly arranged. In all else the girls are easy to lead."

"There are so many different ways of making a suggestion. There are 250 girls here, and I know every one of them personally. I like every one of them, and one does not resent a suggestion from a friend that is obviously for one's own welfare."

"In this store we have three rules that we enforce particularly. We will not permit a girl to chew gum. There are signs in all the departments devoted to employees which read: "Employees who find it necessary to chew gum during business hours will kindly seek employment elsewhere."

"We insist that the girls dress their hair simply, and we will not tolerate the use of cosmetics."

In another big department store, a keen, quick business woman assists the man in charge of the department which employs the saleswomen.

"The moment I see a girl's natural taste in dress I can tell what sort of a business woman she is going to make," this clothes censor affirmed. "Of course, the girls sometimes make minor mistakes after they get here—too much jewelry, or something of that kind, but usually a hint is sufficient. I speak to them because I think a woman can broach such a subject more tactfully."

"These absurdly tight dresses that are now the fashion have given us some trouble. We cannot have girls behind the counters in costumes that conspicuously and vulgarly display the lines of the figure. Most of the girls, though, wear aprons, and these do much to counteract the clinging gowns."

Practically all the department stores in this city allow the saleswomen in their employ to purchase from them with a discount varying from 6 to 15 per cent. Also many of the stores permit a reasonable purchase, the amount to be subsequently taken in small instalments from the saleswoman's salary. Other stores have a mutual loan association, where a girl in need of a dress or suit may borrow the money to buy it without payment of interest. Several of the higher grade stores supply the saleswomen in the garment departments with one good black dress each year.

Few of the saleswomen are married, and the demand among the shops is for the woman who lives at home.

CAT SUCKS OUT BABY'S LIFE

Child's Mother Finds the Animal on Bed with Dead Infant—Several Other Cases.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—While the child's mother was sleeping near by, a large black cat sucked out the life of Augustus Sanders, 9 weeks old, in a flat in No. 173 Scholes street. When the mother, Mrs. James Sanders, awoke she saw the cat sitting on the child's breast. Greatly frightened, she used a broom to drive the animal away. The cat leaped from the bed and was forced into the kitchen. There it turned on the woman and sprang on her shoulder. Mrs. Sanders threw it to the floor and, using the broom, drove the enraged animal out of the kitchen window.

When she hastened back to her baby Mrs. Sanders observed the infant's hands were cold. She shouted for help, and other women tenants rushed in. One of them called a policeman, who sent for an ambulance. Dr. Driscoll came from St. Catherine's Hospital, and as soon as he looked at the child pronounced him dead. An autopsy was performed to determine definitely the cause of death. Mrs. Sanders was told the cat probably had sucked the child's breath away, thereby causing death from suffocation. Several cases of the same sort are on record.

CHICAGO HAS CENSOR OF DRESS.

Women Employees of Department Store Have to Obey Her Orders.

Chicago.—Mrs. G. Henville has been appointed official censor of the costumes of women employees of one of the largest State street department stores. Her edicts for the attire of the young women have been issued.

Simplicity is the keynote of the orders. Saleswomen must appear neatly attired in a black or white skirt waist, black skirt, hair done neatly without artificial adornment and without exaggerations of the fashions.

Here are some of the things Mrs. Henville has eliminated from the attire of women and girl employees of the store: Hair puffs, rats, false curls and hair bows; low neck collars and short or extremely long sleeves, peek-a-boo waists or sleeves, powder, paint or other "makeup," flashy rings, buckles or pins; waists of any other color than black or white; skirts of any other color than black; jewelry is limited to one ring and a locket. High collars reaching to the ears may be worn. Sleeves of shirt waists must be three-quarter length and the shirt waist be tailor-made.

Richmond Suburb Gives Women Right to Vote.

Richmond, Va.—The people of Ginter Park, the most fashionable and wealthiest suburb of Richmond, Va., have formally extended the suffrage to women.

At a meeting of the Citizens' Association, the governing body of the suburb, a constitution and by-laws were adopted, one provision of which is that all males and females, white, and over twenty-one years of age, owning property and living in Ginter Park, and subscribing to the constitution and by-laws, have a right to vote.

CAUGHT THE SPOOK.

Berlin Police Also Got Frau Abend, Who Materialized at High Figures.

Berlin.—The spiritualists in Berlin are indignant over the arrest of Anna Abend, a well known medium, and her husband. For years the couple have had a large clientele among all classes of society, for whom they summoned spirits at fees varying with the length of the customer's purses. In the case of wealthy persons the fees were very high.

Detectives disguised and posing as earnest spiritualists were admitted to a seance. They grabbed the first spook answering the summons and it proved to be Anna. Despite her protests and those of the audience, she was taken to a police station and charged with fraud.

PASTORS TO SELECT JURIES.

Scheme to Improve Class of Jurors in Wilkes-Barre.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa.—Clergymen of this county were asked by the Court to send in lists of names of men who they believe will make honest and capable jurors. This was done in an effort to improve the class of the jurymen who serve the county.

The choosing of names by the clergymen from among their own parishioners and neighbors is expected to entirely eliminate politics from the selection of juries. It is expected that there will be sufficient names sent in to select the first juries to serve next year from them.

A Good Opportunity.

"Your pa's coming down on Saturday. I wonder if that would be a good time to speak to him?"

"Yes. When ma tells him what she's spent down here he'll be glad to get rid of the lot of us!"—Comic Cuts.

A Breakfast for Five Costs Only 10c

All the wealth in the world could buy nothing finer for breakfast than Beardsley's Shredded Codfish.

This forms the favorite morning meal in many a millionaire's home. And dozens of dishes made from it are on the breakfast and luncheon menus of this country's most expensive hotels.

Yet more than enough for five hungry people will cost you only 10 cents.

And there's nothing easier to prepare. You can have it ready for the table—cooked to the Queen's taste—in less than 10 minutes.

The Incomparable Flavor

Lots of people like Beardsley's Shredded Codfish so well that they eat it right out of the package—before it is cooked.

This doesn't taste at all like the old-fashioned dried codfish. And you'll find a vast difference between this and all other codfish in packages.

We use only the choicest fish—the plumpest and fattest. We get them from Northern waters. The fish which feed here attain a superlative flavor.

And we take only the choicest parts of each fish—the sweetest, most delicate meat.

Better Than New Laid Eggs

Your folks will find Beardsley's Shredded Codfish a welcome change from meat or eggs.

It is richer in food value than either.

It contains 22 per cent protein. Sirloin steak only 17 per cent. Eggs only 12 1-2. Protein is the strengthening, nourishing element in food.

And see what you save by serving it. A package of this—plenty for five—costs only ten cents.

Eggs or meat for five cost three or four times as much.

Have It Tomorrow—"Fish-Day"

Surprise your folks tomorrow morning—"fish-day"—with this delicious food.

When they find out how good it is, they'll want it at least once a week. There are so many appetizing ways to prepare it, that no one can ever tire of it.

Breakfast Ready in 10 Minutes

Beardsley's Shredded Codfish is no bother at all to prepare. No bones to pick out—no washing—no soaking—no boiling.

It's so fine and fluffy and dainty that it cooks in less than ten minutes.

Get a package today from your grocer. Be sure it's Beardsley's—the package with the red band. Beardsley's is the only Shredded Codfish. No other kind will taste half so good.

Free Book of Recipes

Ask your grocer for our free book of recipes—so you'll know how to bring out all the fine flavor.

Or write us—we'll send you the book—and with it a generous sample of Beardsley's Shredded Codfish.
